Agenda: In Noah's head

- I. Celebrations: Denise has streamlined assignments – kids behavior has improved; Bart is impressed with teacher's immediate response to an issue; Annika's kids persevered through a tough tech situation; Sharon is proud of the way staff has come together to support a student; Brooke has gotten the auction up and running well; Jen presented downtown about the center program at Morey; Elizabeth has heard reports about an increase in consistency across the board; Hillary is excited to join Morey and to see the culture is focused around responsiveness to change; Noah saw the power of patience during testing.
- II. Testing:
  - Talking about technical glitches, the amount of time, how the standards are measured, and how it will be improved over time.
  - We could do interims and PARCC at the same time since there aren't enough computers to go around for PARCC.
- III. Teach for One
  - A group was able to go to Chicago to see a Teach for One
  - Teach for One supports teacher to parent communication via a parent log in.
  - Last Year students in Teach to One showed a year and a half worth of growth.
- IV. Noah's Brilliant Decision
  - HGT Coordinator is leaving, Morey's HGT program is stagnant
  - Diane Gaston will be the new HGT coordinator next year. Making the program more applicable and robust.
  - Predicting a high staff turnover for next year; really asking teachers to "bring it."
